- Michael Bravin enters plea bargain

Michael Bravin, former vice president of market development for Arri Group, struck a plea bargain Thursday. After admitting he accessed a computer owned by rival camera company Band Pro Film & Digital Inc. in Burbank.

Bravin admitted to intentionally accessing a corporate e-mail account belonging to Amnon Band -- Band Pro's President and CEO

Bravin obtained Band's user name and password during his 16-year tenure at the company, which he left in December 2009 before joining ARRI as VP of Market Development in 2010

Bravin will serve two months in jail and pay at least $5K in restitution as well as legal costs.

Discusses the Hocus Products 'Hocus Focus Pro'

The original Hocus Focus is designed for DSLR, SLR and broadcast lenses, and while it handles these types of lenses very effectively, it is not intended for big, heavy cine lenses used by many professional film makers. We are now adding to the Hocus Focus range a new model which addresses these issues as well as adding a host of additional features.

The Hocus Focus Professional (or HoFoPro for short) is an additional model to the highly successful HoFo which has filled a growing need for the past year for a low cost high quality remote follow focus system.

The Hocus Focus Professional features an updated transmitter and an entirely new digital motor and receiver. The whole system is designed for the higher end user, and is made for big, heavy cine lenses where power and silence of operation are important issues. Both the transmitter and receiver have user updatable firmware via USB and will be FCC certified for use in the USA.
